

This is a detailed architectural floor plan of a building, likely a school or office, showing a central corridor and multiple rooms. The plan is overlaid with a grid of dashed lines, with black dots marking the intersections. Circular room numbers are distributed throughout the plan, indicating the location of each room. A red path is highlighted, starting from the top left, moving right, then down, then right again, and finally down to the bottom right. The central corridor features a staircase and two large rectangular areas with diagonal lines, possibly representing elevators or large open spaces. The overall layout is symmetrical, with rooms arranged on either side of the central corridor.
